To whom this may concern,

I recently had a consultation and treatment with a nurse who I felt most comfortable with even more comfortable than with my own doctor. She guided me through the whole process giving me detailed answers to my every question. The initial consultation with real time video was more in-depth than a visit to my GP, the nurse provided me with information about the treatments and discussed the complications and side effects that may occur after the treatment, and follow contact was made which is more than you receive after visiting your GP who you have been seeing for years. I felt more than safe throughout the whole process and would rather continue seeing my cosmetic nurse rather than a doctor I don't know at all. It would be very disappointing if people like myself were denied the opportunity to do this.

Sincerely,

Amanda [REDACTED]
