Subject: Submission re Professional Indemnity Insurance -registration standard
Date: Thursday, 22 May 2014 7:42:30 PM

My name is [REDACTED] and I am registered to practice as a General Practitioner in Australia... Date of Birth : [REDACTED]. Address Box [REDACTED].

I am practising as a locum having retired from my GP practice in June 2011.

I wish to comment on the Professional Indemnity Insurance standard – “Employer Indemnified”

I understand that as a locum , the GP who employs me is liable for my actions. I would like to know at which point does the employing GP cease to be liable ,ie if the locum is negligent and in breach of his/her professional registration standards,or at some other arbitrary juncture which is not clear to me now . Does the limit of the employer’s indemnification need to be specified for locum practitioners?

I have read my indemnity insurance policy and cannot see any reference to locum practitioners and employer indemnification limits.

I am yet to discuss this concern with [REDACTED] my insurer. I intend to do so..
